NAVY CRUISER MEASURE IS WEDGED IN JAM

LEADERS FEAR FILIBUSTER MAY BE STARTED

DIRECTED AGAINST $174,000,000
NAVY BUILDING PRO-GRAM

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT AP-PROPRIATION BILLS TAKE RIGHT OF WAY

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 17.—The naval cruiser bill became wedged between a group of appropriation bills and other vital measures today, causing some apprehension among the senate leaders who fear a filibuster may be started against the $174,000,000 naval building program.

The agricultural department and the first deficiency appropriation bills took the right of way in the senate while the naval bill languished as the official unfinished business. There is a stiff fight impending over the tax refund and prohibition provisions of the deficiency measure which may require several days of debate. Next to come is the reapportionment measure and some disputed points in several appropriation bills already passed by the two houses.

If this condition continues Chairman Hale of the senate naval affairs committee, in charge of the naval bill, is expected to seek night sessions so the measure can be passed before the closing days of the session when it would be at the mercy of the "little navy" group contesting its passage. There are now not more than 25 senators out of 96 who are opposed to the bill. But the opposition is militant and there have been threats of a filibuster if the opportunity offers.

Those opposed to the bill are from mid-western states. They contend the bill authorizes increased expenditures which are paid by taxes of farmers and business men for a purpose from which they reap little benefit. They would rather have a rivers and harbors bill passed for improvement of midwestern lanes of water navigation.

Six more weeks remain before adjournment, which is sufficient time to pass the naval bill provided it is not long delayed by the appropriation bills and other matters. It is the only important matter on the program of the leaders for the rest of the session.

The house was preparing more appropriation troubles for the senate by preparing to pass the independent offices appropriation bill before night.

BANDITS WITH PRICE ON HEADS MOROSE IN CELLS

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 17. — (UP)—With a price of many thousands of dollars on their heads, Bryon Walker, alias Roberts, and Fred Nave, said to be members of the famous Ace Penitentiary outlaw band which terrorized the southwest, sat non-committal in their cells today. Police claim to have linked them with more than ten murders in four southwestern states. The alleged bandits were placed in solitary confinement under triple guard. Sawed-off shotguns and tear gas bombs were placed outside their cells to balk any attempt at escape or suicide.

Authorities of four western states were reported to be on their way here to claim the pair.

Police said Walker is wanted in Texas, Kansas and Colorado for at least nine murders. Nave, also known by various other names, was said by police to be connected with one killing and several bank holdups in Texas and Oklahoma.

H. D. Harper, police chief of Colorado City, Colo., is expected to arrive tomorrow to attempt to identify the pair as members of the gang that staged a holdup in a bank there in which four men were killed.

Farm Bureau Federation Repeats Demand for Farm Relief as Based on Equalization Fee

SAY REVISED MCNARY BILL HAS NO POWER

"MINNESOTA PLAN" AND OTHER
SUBSTITUTED PROPOSALS
ATTACKED

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS ESTABLISHMENT OF FEDERAL
FARM BOARD

St. Paul, Jan. 17. — (UP)—The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, through its legislative committee, today repeated its demand for agricultural relief legislation founded on the equalization fee principle.

In its report to the tenth annual convention of the federation, the committee declared that the revised McNary bill, the "Minnesota plan," and other substitute proposals, failed to put sine in the required relief legislation.

The committee recommended the establishment of a federal farm board with powers as broad as the federal reserve board; the collection of a commodity fee to cover losses on the world market, and the segregation of exportable surplus of products to protect the domestic market.

President-elect Herbert Hoover was called upon for the early appointment of an agricultural commission, suggested in his campaign speeches, so that "when the extra session of congress convenes to consider surplus control legislation, a definite national agricultural policy will have been formulated."

Unalterable opposition was voiced to 'so-called debenture plans for the payment of loss sustained in the exportable surplus, and every form of government subsidy."

Opposition to the new McNary bill was made because no provision is made "to take care of the exportable surplus and hence no sufficient plan to make the tariff effective."

The "Minnesota plan," formulated recently by 60 state editors and favorably received by many organizations and individuals, was termed "commendable but wholly insufficient as a substitute for the relief legislation required." The plan lacked, the report said, principles and provisions "deemed indispensable to restore and maintain equality to agriculture."

State legislation recommended by the committee included:

Expenditure of one-third of the gasoline tax on state roads at the direction of county commissioners.

Serious consideration of relief to Beltrami and Lake of the Woods counties.

Passage of the cigaret tax bill introduced by Rep. Dunn, Pelican Rapids, with the tax raised to three cents.

Encouragement of county extension work in agriculture and economics as apart from work now done with public funds.

Consideration of legislation which would readjust taxation laws on the basis of income rather than on basis of real and personal property.

The convention will be ended late today with the election of officers. A. J. Olson, president, is expected to be re-elected despite the agitation on the part of some members to bring back to leadership J. F. Reed, who resigned last fall to campaign for Alfred E. Smith. Reed has stated that he was not a candidate.

274 Students Recover from Ptomaine Poisoning

Winona, Minn., Jan. 17. — (UP)—Apparently fully recovered from the effects of ptomaine poisoning, following a week end breakfast, St. Teresa's 274 students were back in their class rooms today.

About two-thirds of the student body were ill for a brief period and classes were discontinued for a day. Dr. W. V. Lindsay, city health officer, reported that something eaten by the students at the breakfast had apparently caused the slight poisoning.

BABE RUTH COLLAPSES AT BIER OF WIFE

Boston, Jan. 17. — (UP)—Babe Ruth collapsed at the bier of his estranged wife early today.

The Yankee slugger made his way through a crowd of 5,000 gathered around the home of Mrs. Ruth's relatives and went inside where preparations for a simple funeral today were being made.

"There's the Babe," shouted the crowd that jammed the streets for several blocks.

Boston, Jan. 17. — (UP)—While crowds of curious stood outside, with 28 policemen maintaining order, simple funeral services were held today for Mrs. Babe Ruth who died tragically in a fire in Watertown last Friday.

The funeral had been authorized after a second autopsy showed there was no foul play, but that death in the home of Dr. Edward H. Kinder was due to incineration and suffocation.

SWARTHY BANDIT CHIEF IS LAYING SIEGE TO THRONE

ENCAMPED BEYOND NARROW
HEIGHTS OF KHYBER PASS,
AFGHANISTAN

APPEARS IN NAME OF PROPHET
AND BY POWER OF RUTH-LESS SWORD

London, Jan. 17. — (UP)—Beyond the narrow heights of Khyber Pass, at the gates of the capital of Afghanistan, a swarthy bandit chief lay siege to the throne of a Moslem kingdom today in the name of the prophet and by the power of a ruthless sword.

Bacha Sakao, brigand son of a water-carrier, led his combined force of outlaws from the Charikar district and religious fanatics from the Shinwari tribes past the outer defenses of Kabul last night, according to semi-official advices received here.

Subsequent official advices received today said Bacha Sakao now controls all of Kabul except the arg, or citadel in the center of the city, where the government forces still held out. Apparently the bandit leader's drive to topple the newly-crowned King Inayatullah from his throne was succeeding.

The fate of the king was uncertain. A border rumor said he and his brother, Amanullah, who abdicated in his favor a few days ago, had been captured. Amanullah, however, was understood to have taken refuge in Kandahar, his stronghold, and the authenticity of the rumor was doubtful.

The United Press correspondent at Peshawar relayed reports received there that the insurgents had attacked and shelled the capital. Advices that Bacha Sakao's fiery hill-men had crashed through and engaged the royalist soldiers in hand-to-hand combat reached London through semi-official channels.

SMITH WANTS PARTY TO WIPE OUT DEFICITS

TO REBUILD FOR FUTURE ALONG
"PROGRESSIVE, VIGOROUS, MILITANT" LINES

FORMER CANDIDATE ADDRESSED
NATIONAL RADIO AUDIENCE
LAST NIGHT

New York, Jan. 17. — (UP)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith wants the democratic party to wipe out its 1928 deficit and rebuild for the future along "progressive, vigorous and militant" lines.

Addressing a national radio audience last night, the defeated presidential candidate sounded the keynote for a drive to get a fighting democratic organization formed now. He called upon the rank and file for contributions to clear the $1,500,000 deficit in the party treasury; and proposed that the democrats organize and maintain a permanent machine.

The party, he said, should not be only merely of opposition, but should be prepared to function definitely and continuously for the "rights of all people; constantly laboring for the vindication of the policies and principles underlying the establishment of our country."

Smith spoke as a private citizen, calling attention to his forthcoming southern visit and his present freedom from political office for the first time in 25 years.

There was nothing to indicate his own future plans, and nothing beyond the fact of his taking the initiative in the new party campaign—to show he intends to continue the role of party leader henceforth.

Commenting to the United Press, Dr. Heintz-Boyer said he was optimistic over the marshal's condition, but there always was the fear that the heart would suddenly weaken, as it had yesterday morning when physicians were summoned hastily.

2 WOMEN OFFICIALS ALLEGED TO HAVE CAUSED DEATH
OF GIRL

CHARGED THE ALBUQUERQUE
PAIR STARVED GIRL AND
GAVE INJECTIONS

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 17. — (UP)—Two women officials of the girls' welfare home here, alleged to have caused the death of Helen Hasckew, 18, by starvation and injections, of twilight sleep, were to be charged with manslaughter today.

District Attorney Eugene Lujan announced the verdict of a coroner's jury that the Hasckew girl died from the effects of mistreatment would form the basis of his charges against Miss Bertha Lips, superintendent, and Dr. Evelyn Frisbie, home physician.

Inquest witnesses testified that the young girl was administered a three-day diet of bread and water and twilight sleep injections as punishment for an attempt to escape the institution. Miss Hasckew died Sunday.

Five girls who escaped with Miss Hasckew testified concerning conditions at the home. They charged they also were given a diet and said the water given them contained so much salt-peter that it was undrinkable.

Miss Hasckew rebelled against the diet, they testified, and the superintendent and home doctor administered twilight sleep to quiet her. She died eighteen hours later.

Hoover devoted his attention today to correspondence and arrangements of details of his Florida trip, with only a few callers visiting him informally.

HISTORIC EAST ROOM OF WHITE
HOUSE IS SCENE OF
EVENT

CABINET, VICE PRESIDENT AND
SENATE MEMBERS ARE PRESENT

Washington, Jan. 17. — (UP)—In the presence of the cabinet, Vice President Dawes and members of the senate, President Coolidge signed the Kellogg anti-war treaty at 10:10 A. M. today.

The signing took place in the historic east room of the White House. A motion picture camera was set up. The treaty and the ratification document bedecked in red ribbon and gold seals lay on the famous presidential desk which was placed in the center of the great east room for this occasion.

Senator Borah was the first of the headlines to arrive. He thumbed over the treaty while the camera men were setting up their spotlights. "It seems to be all right," Borah said, smiling as he turned away from the document.

Senators and cabinet officers arrived rapidly. Within a few minutes there was a great semi-circle of spectators on one side of the desk and almost equally large semi-circle of cameras and spotlights on the other side.

"There are the real rulers of this government," Senator Moses, New Hampshire, said rather critically of the elaborate filming preparation.

President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg entered, Mrs. Coolidge stopping at the door to look on at the historic scene.

The president scrutinized the documents for a moment and then took up a gold pen about eight inches long elaborately engraved and affixed his signature.

Then the president was asked to go through the motions of signing several times more for the benefit of the photographers.

Finally President Coolidge signaled enough, arose, shook hands with Secretary Kellogg, Senator Borah and several persons nearest him, turned and left the room.

With that, what Mr. Coolidge recently said was the greatest act of his administration officially was completed and the United States had finished its part in joining the nations of the world in the first general treaty against war.

Farm Bureau Federation Repeats Demand for Farm Relief as Based on Equalization Fee

SAY REVISED MCNARY BILL HAS NO POWER

"MINNESOTA PLAN" AND OTHER
SUBSTITUTED PROPOSALS
ATTACKED

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS ES-TABLISHMENT OF FEDERAL
FARM BOARD

St. Paul, Jan. 17.—(UP)—The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, through its legislative committee, today repeated its demand for agricultural relief legislation founded on the equalization fee principle.

In its report to the tenth annual convention of the federation, the committee declared that the revised McNary bill, the "Minnesota plan," and other substitute proposals, failed to put in new in the required relief legislation.

The committee recommended the establishment of a federal farm board with powers as broad as the federal reserve board; the collection of a commodity fee to cover losses on the world market, and the segregation of exportable surplus of products to protect the domestic market.

President-elect Herbert Hoover was called upon for the early appointment of an agricultural commission, suggested in his campaign speeches, so that "when the extra session of congress convenes to consider surplus control legislation, a definite national agricultural policy will have been formulated."

Unalterable opposition was voiced to so-called debenture plans for the payment of loss sustained in the exportable surplus, and every form of government subsidy.

Opposition to the new McNary relief bill was made because no provision is made "to take care of the exportable surplus and hence no sufficient plan to make the tariff effective."

The "Minnesota plan," formulated recently by 60 state editors and favorably received by many organizations and individuals, was termed "commendable but wholly insufficient as a substitute for the relief legislation required." The plan lacked, the report said, principles and provisions "deemed indispensable to restore and maintain equality to agriculture."

State legislation recommended by the committee included:

Expenditure of one-third of the gasoline tax on state roads at the direction of county commissioners.

Serious consideration of relief to Beltrami and Lake of the Woods counties.

Passage of the cigarette tax bill introduced by Rep. Dunn, Pelican Rapids, with the tax raised to three cents.

Free markets for twine and other prison made goods.

Encouragement of county extension work in agriculture and economics as apart from work now done with public funds.

Consideration of legislation which would readjust taxation laws on the basis of income rather than on basis of real and personal property.

The convention will be ended late today with the election of officers. A. J. Olson, president, is expected to be re-elected despite the agitation on the part of some members to bring back to leadership J. F. Reed, who resigned to fall to campaign for Alfred E. Smith. Reed has stated that he was not a candidate.

Allahabad, India, Jan. 17.—(UP)—Persistent rumors from Peshawar said today that Bacha Sakao, rebel chief, had captured Kabul, capital of Afghanistan, and made prisoners of former King Amanullah and his brother, King Inayatullah, in whose favor Amanullah abdicated.

EVER PRESENT FEAR THAT MARSHAL FOCH'S HEART MAY WEAKEN

Paris, Jan. 17.—(UP)—Marshal Ferdinand Foch, aged warrior, appeared considerably improved today after a complication of heart attacks and uraemia which had aroused fears for his life.

None of his six physicians followed the procedure of remaining at his bedside last night, and early today it was said he was resting quietly.

Commenting to the United Press, Dr. Heintz-Boyer said he was optimistic over the marshal's condition, but there always was the fear that the heart would suddenly weaken, as it had yesterday morning when physicians were summoned hastily.

SERIOUS CHARGES MADE AGAINST WELFARE HOME

2 WOMEN OFFICIALS ALLEGED
TO HAVE CAUSED DEATH
OF GIRL

CHARGED THE ALBUQUERQUE
PAIR STARVED GIRL AND
GAVE INJECTIONS

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 17.—(UP)—Two women officials of the girls' welfare home here, alleged to have caused the death of Helen Haskew, 18, by starvation and injections, of twilight sleep, were to be charged with manslaughter today.

District Attorney Eugene Lujan announced the verdict of a coroner's jury that the Haskew girl died from the effects of mistreatment would form the basis of his charges against Miss Bertha Lips, superintendent, and Dr. Evelyn Frisbie, home physician.

Inquest witnesses testified that the young girl was administered a three-day diet of bread and water and twilight sleep injections as punishment for an attempt to escape the institution. Miss Haskew died Sunday.

Five girls who escaped with Miss Haskew testified concerning conditions at the home. They charged they also were given a diet and said the water given them contained so much salt-peter that it was undrinkable.

Miss Haskew rebelled against the diet, they testified, and the superintendent and home doctor administered twilight sleep to quiet her. She died eighteen hours later.

SPECIAL TRAIN ON ATLANTIC

MIAMI BEACH

HOOVER IS ADVISED THAT CELE-BRATION IS PLANNED FOR HIS ARRIVAL

Washington, Jan. 17.—(UP)—President-elect Hoover will leave here Monday at 10:30 A. M., for Florida on a special train of the Atlantic Coast Line which is due to reach Miami Beach about 1:30 on Tuesday afternoon, it was announced today at his headquarters.

Hoover has been advised that a celebration is planned for his arrival.

The president-elect will live, while in Florida, on the estate of J. C. Penney, chain store magnate. He is expected to return here shortly after the middle of February for a series of conferences before opening of his administration.

The president-elect had a breakfast conference today with Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, who, it is rumored, may be retained at his post by Hoover. Farm sentiment toward Jardine, once hostile, is reported to have changed in his favor recently.

Hoover devoted his attention today to correspondence and arrangements of details of his Florida trip, with only a few callers visiting him informally.

HISTORIC EAST ROOM OF WHITE
HOUSE IS SCENE OF
EVENT

CABINET, VICE PRESIDENT AND
SENATE MEMBERS ARE PRESENT

Washington, Jan. 17.—(UP)—In the presence of the cabinet, Vice President Dawes and members of the senate, President Coolidge signed the Kellogg anti-war treaty at 10:10 A. M. today.

The signing took place in the historic east room of the White House. A motion picture camera was set up. The treaty and the ratification document bedecked in red ribbon and gold seals lay on the famous presidential desk which was placed in the center of the great east room for this occasion.

Senator Borah was the first of the headlines to arrive. He thumbed over the treaty while the camera men were setting up their spotlights. "It seems to be all right," Borah said, smiling as he turned away from the document.

Sensors and cabinet officers arrived rapidly. Within a few minutes there was a great semi-circle of spectators on one side of the desk and almost equally large semi-circle of cameras and spotlights on the other side.

"There are the real rulers of this government," Senator Moses, New Hampshire, said rather critically of the elaborate filming preparation.

President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg entered, Mrs. Coolidge stopping at the door to look on at the historic scene.

The president scrutinized the documents for a moment and then took up a gold pen about eight inches long elaborately engraved and affixed his signature.

Then the president was asked to go through the motions of signing several times more for the benefit of the photographers.

Finally President Coolidge signaled enough, arose, shook hands with Secretary Kellogg, Senator Borah and several persons nearest him, turned and left the room.

With that, what Mr. Coolidge recently said was the greatest act of his administration officially was completed and the United States had finished its part in joining the nations of the world in the first general treaty against war.

Paris, Jan. 17.—Aristide Briand, foreign minister, submitted the Kellogg anti-war treaty to the chamber of deputies today for ratification. The deputies applauded and referred the treaty to the foreign affairs commission for examination.

FIVE YOUNG MEN RAID NEW YORK JEWELRY STORE

New York, Jan. 17.—(UP)—Bandit activities turned to the exclusive millionaire district of upper Park avenue today when five young men raided a jewelry store and escaped with between $100,000 and $200,000 in precious jewels.

The jewelry store was in one of the exclusive apartment hotels which line the thoroughfare that has gained the reputation of housing more millionaires than any other street in the world.

FORMER EVANGELIST FOUND NOT GUILTY

Elkhart, Ind., Jan. 17.—(UP)—Harvey L. Smith, former evangelist and circus Barker today was found not guilty of the murder of Mrs. Genevieve Stults, beauty culturist.

He was carried across the Atlantic Saturday to Belgium, scene of his war-time relief activities, in a message to the people of that country, who will hold a celebration in honor of Hoover's election to the presidency.

Hoover will sit in his home and talk over a trans-Atlantic telephone connection.

The king and queen of Belgium will participate in the celebration.

It is expected that the case would be given to the jury about 5 p. m. today.

The plaintiffs represented by Attorneys Hilding and G. S. Swanson ask a total of $32,000 damages for injuries caused when Mrs. Forsberg fell on the sidewalk on Sixth street west of the bank on February 9, 1927. The defense attorneys are M. E. and C. A. Ryan.

Suppose There Were No Winter

Winter, to some you are cheerless To some you are cold and drear But also to many people You bring both fun and cheer.

Where would we get ice for our skating?

Where for our sleds the snow? What would we do without sleigh-rides That all of us have loved so

Some of our famous snow battles Might never have been fought, Some of the "cotton-tails" hidings May never have been sought.

Hills would be useless for skiing Without the aid of snow. Who would be without tobogganing? Not many that I know.

Think of the wonderful paintings Which may not have been made Had winter a beautiful picture On our window panes not laid.

Yes, Winter, you may be cold And some you may make sad But when we think of the fun you bring,

Winter, you're not so bad. ALFREDA ZAWADZKI.

NO longer need a trim, slender figure be your envy. No longer need you face the rigid requirements of harsh dieting methods. Overweight is banished when you banish fattening sweets and eating between meals and light a Lucky. "Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

20,679 physicians have confirmed the fact that Lucky Strike is less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes. These professional men realize the value of toasting, the secret process that eliminates impurities and irritants. Lucky Strike is a delightful blend of the world's finest tobaccos. And toasting develops a flavor which is a delightful alternative for fattening sweets.

Many prominent athletes testify that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. Men have long known this and practiced it successfully. These are the men who watch their health, who keep trim and fit, realizing the dangers of overweight. And now, women may enjoy a companionable smoke with their husbands and brothers—at the same time slenderizing in a sensible manner. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

The trial of Emma and Fred Forsberg vs. the First National bank of Brainerd, a suit for injuries, neared a close in district court this afternoon.

It is expected that the case would be given to the jury about 5 p. m. today.

The plaintiffs represented by Attorneys Hilding and G. S. Swanson ask a total of $32,000 damages for injuries caused when Mrs. Forsberg fell on the sidewalk on Sixth street west of the bank on February 9, 1927. The defense attorneys are M. E. and C. A. Ryan.

Suppose There Were No Winter. To some you are cold and drear. To some you are people. You bring both fun and cheer.

Where would we get ice for our skating?

Where for our sleds the snow? What would we do without sleigh-rides

That all of us have loved so

Some of our famous snow battles Might never have been fought. Some of the "cotton-tails" hidings May never have been sought.

Hills would be useless for skiing Without the aid of snow.

Who would be without tobogganing? Not many that I know.

Think of the wonderful paintings Which may not have been made Had winter a beautiful picture

On our window panes not laid.

Yes, winter, you may be cold And some you may make sad But when we think of the fun you bring.

Winter, you're not so bad. ALFREDA ZAWADZKI.

George M. Cohan,
America's Stage Favorite

No longer need a trim, slender figure be your envy. No longer need you face the rigid requirements of harsh dieting methods. Overweight is banished when you banish fattening sweets and eating between meals and light a Lucky. "Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

20,679 physicians have confirmed the fact that Lucky Strike is less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes. These professional men realize the value of toasting, the secret process that eliminates impurities and irritants. Lucky Strike is a delightful blend of the world's finest tobaccos. And toasting develops a flavor which is a delightful alternative for fattening sweets.

Many prominent athletes testify that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. Men have long known this and practiced it successfully. These are the men who watch their health, who keep trim and fit, realizing the dangers of overweight. And now, women may enjoy a companionable smoke with their husbands and brothers—at the same time slenderizing in a sensible manner. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

TELLS OF HEALING THROUGH PRAYER

Evangelist Gives Message of Scriptural Healing at Baptist Church

A special service of prayer for healing was held last evening in connection with the evangelistic services of the First Baptist church. This was led by the pastor, and a message on "The Scriptural Plan of Healing in the Church," was brought by Rev. Leslie R. Hall the evangelist.

In part Mr. Hall said, "The promise of God 'the prayer of faith shall save the sick' has never been abrogated. The church has lost infinitely much by not realizing through faith the power which God has placed at its command. There are certain conditions however to healing through prayer which must be met. A clean life, the confession of sins, a complete devotion to the will of God, are absolute requisites. It is when these are true that the Holy Spirit can pray through us the prayer of faith. When we follow the Scriptural teaching we can never fall into fanaticism on this question."

He told of several cases that had found healing under his direct observation—a woman who was given up with cancer 21 years ago and is living and well today, a girl who was stricken with paralysis and who found immediate healing and a young woman who was restored from a tumor at the base of the brain.

A great service will be held this evening. All are invited to attend.

WHAT YEAR HAS IN STORE FOR US

THE new year is here, and the question uppermost in the minds of most business men is "what is the business prospect for the coming year?"

A national survey recently sent out from Washington indicates that business will be better in 1929 but competition will be keener. Minnesota is promised greatest prosperity in the new year.

But locally as far as this community is concerned, the prosperity of our people will be reflected in the amount that they can spend. It is up to us all to do our utmost to make our people as prosperous as possible. Every issue of this paper contains suggestions that are designed to be of value to the large bulk of the farming community.

It is up to the business men of each locality to make efforts to get people to trade there, and business interests are always on the alert in this respect.

Business life is continually a struggle for progress, with the outcome a survival of the fittest. An effort must constantly be made to bring trade to our city or it may go elsewhere.

Towns and cities will progress and beat last year's record because their citizens will make an organized effort to push business. Correspondingly, those towns and cities which do not make special effort—content to sit down and wait for something to happen—will suffer through efforts put forth by neighbor towns—and go back.

What the future holds for this city is largely up to its citizens—and particularly its business men. Here progressive effort counts.

Cities are not made up entirely of business blocks and streets and rows of residences. They are built from the hearts of men, from the energies of men, from the foresight of men, from the ability of men to co-operate and work together. Where even one business man lags or fails to co-operate there is not the same co-ordinate effort. And here is a chance for all of us to show how we can co-operate and work for the common welfare as well as ourselves.

We have great faith in the existence of the proper spirit as well as the opportunities here. It only remains for all to join efforts for progressive and constructive results.—Spring Valley Tribune.

AGRICULTURE'S GREATEST NEED

AND what do you think is agriculture's greatest need and something which it can never hope to get?

Former Governor Adam McMillen of Nebraska has well said that the farmer is absolutely dependent on the weather. He plants, he sows, he reaps as the weather permits. He has a good crop with the right kind of weather, he has a crop failure when the weather is against him. The weather rules the market.

One good rain in a drought, and changing to good weather, may mean the salvation of a crop.

That is why the Department of Agriculture aids the farmer in every way possible in its weather forecasts.

You can imagine the fortune that awaits any man who can ever accurately predict crop conditions. Speculators have men in the field, on the ground, examining conditions.

The reason the late Herschel V. Jones gained such reputation as a crop forecaster is because he covered the ground himself and examined crops in whole states and took into consideration weather conditions. One year a low crop forecast he had made changed over night with propitious rains and he again took to the field and examined conditions and his report was then so nearly correct as to prove astounding to crop experts. In fact that one report so brought the attention of the world to the Minneapolis Journal that it was a great contributor to its growth.

STATISTICS ON EDUCATION

ACCORDING to the Federal Bureau of Education the United States today in its colleges and universities has in round numbers one million students, 40,000 more than the enrollment in similar institutions in all the rest of the world combined. In high school grades the United States has almost half out of a total of 9,700,000 for the entire world.

Probably more than a third of America's total population has had or is now receiving the equivalent of a high school education. But why in Pestalozzi's name don't they make use of this education? Why doesn't this enormous expense of money and time on the dissemination of knowledge produce a higher grade of citizenship, more intelligent interest in public affairs, a daily press with higher standards, a more vigorous intellectual life?

Either the system of imparting knowledge is wrong or the bulk of the costly education is wasted on boys and girls unable to assimilate and digest it. We prefer to believe that education will "take" much better when schools try to make their pupils think instead of burdening their memories with a jumble of more or less unrelated facts.—December Sunset.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

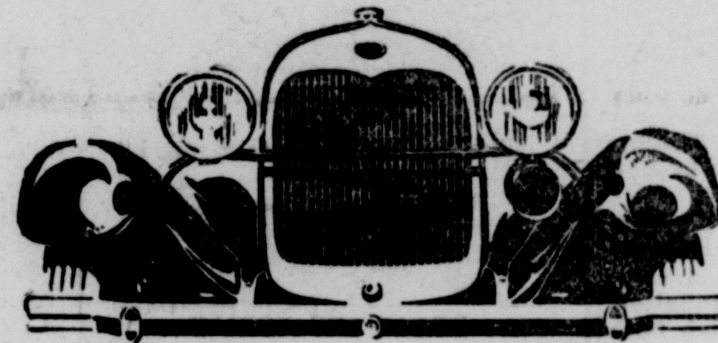

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

CREOMULSION FOR THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford

A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would overheat and the pistons would refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the action of the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The cooling surface of the Ford radiator is large and there are four rows of tubes, set in staggered position so that each receives the full benefit of the incoming air.

The fan is of the airplane-propeller type and draws air through the radiator at the rapid rate of 850 cubic feet per minute at 1000 revolutions per minute of the motor.

The hot water around the cylinder head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full of water, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant, you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

The hose connections may also need replacement after long, continuous service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a competent job at a fair price.

Elaborate Decorations at N. W. Auto Show

Hamline, Minn., Jan. 16.—Decorations on a scale more elaborate than anything ever attempted by an undertaking of this kind have been planned for the Northwest Automobile Show, according to announcement made today by Charles P. Joy, one of the St. Paul members of the joint Twin Cities show committee.

By virtue of an agreement with Holm & Olson, St. Paul florists, more than $12,000 will be spent in getting the 1929 exposition dressed up in its best bib and tucker. Fifteen carloads of Alabama snailax will be used in making a green canopy for the whole interior. In addition to the snailax, a vast quantity of palms, cherry blossoms and other forms of greenery will be necessary.

"The visitors to our show will enjoy the novelty of being transported in a moment from the cold of a Minnesota winter to the light and warmth of a tropical paradise," Mr. Joy said.

With all railroads entering the Twin Cities guaranteeing a special rate of a fare and a half, civic organizations of Minneapolis and St. Paul are preparing for the greatest winter crowd that ever invaded the Twin Cities.

In addition to an elaborate campaign of newspaper advertising, the men behind the exhibition have invoked the aid of the radio and WCCO and KSTP will be busy until Feb. 2 broadcasting advance information of the great motor car classic. Elaborate programs have been arranged by those in charge of the two stations to let the whole world know about the event.

Following its custom inaugurated when the first Twin City show was held in 1908, the directors have again decided that this year's offering will not be open on Sunday.

WHAT YEAR HAS IN STORE FOR US

THE new year is here, and the question uppermost in the minds of most business men is "what is the business prospect for the coming year?"

A national survey recently sent out from Washington indicates that business will be better in 1929 but competition will be keener. Minnesota is promised greatest prosperity in the new year.

But locally as far as this community is concerned, the prosperity of our people will be reflected in the amount that they can spend. It is up to us all to do our utmost to make our people as prosperous as possible. Every issue of this paper contains suggestions that are designed to be of value to the large bulk of the farming community.

It is up to the business men of each locality to make efforts to get people to trade there, and business interests are always on the alert in this respect.

Business life is continually a struggle for progress, with the outcome a survival of the fittest. An effort must constantly be made to bring trade to our city or it may go elsewhere.

Towns and cities will progress and beat last year's record because their citizens will make an organized effort to push business. Correspondingly, those towns and cities which do not make special effort—content to sit down and wait for something to happen—will suffer through efforts put forth by neighbor towns—and go back.

What the future holds for this city is largely up to its citizens—and particularly its business men. Here progressive effort counts.

Cities are not made up entirely of business blocks and streets and rows of residences. They are built from the hearts of men, from the energies of men, from the foresight of men, from the ability of men to co-operate and work together. Where even one business man lags or fails to co-operate there is not the same co-ordinate effort. And here is a chance for all of us to show how we can co-operate and work for the common welfare as well as ourselves.

We have great faith in the existence of the proper spirit as well as the opportunities here. It only remains for all to join efforts for progressive and constructive results.—Spring Valley Tribune.

AGRICULTURE'S GREATEST NEED

AND what do you think is agriculture's greatest need and something which it can never hope to get?

Former Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska has well said that the farmer is absolutely dependent on the weather. He plants, he sows, he reaps as the weather permits. He has a good crop with the right kind of weather, he has a crop failure when the weather is against him. The weather rules the market.

One good rain in a drought, and changing to good weather, may mean the salvation of a crop.

That is why the Department of Agriculture aids the farmer in every way possible in its weather forecasts.

You can imagine the fortune that awaits any man who can ever accurately predict crop conditions. Speculators have men in the field, on the ground, examining conditions.

The reason the late Herschel V. Jones gained such reputation as a crop forecaster is because he covered the ground himself and examined crops in whole states and took into consideration weather conditions. One year a low crop forecast he had made changed over night with propitious rains and he again took to the field and examined conditions and his report was then so nearly correct as to prove astounding to crop experts. In fact that one report so brought the attention of the world to the Minneapolis Journal that it was a great contributor to its growth.

STATISTICS ON EDUCATION

ACCORDING to the Federal Bureau of Education the United States today in its colleges and universities has in round numbers one million students, 40,000 more than the enrollment in similar institutions in all the rest of the world combined. In high school grades the United States has almost half out of a total of 9,700,000 for the entire world.

Probably more than a third of America's total population has had or is now receiving the equivalent of a high school education. But why in Pestalozzi's name don't they make use of this education? Why doesn't this enormous expense of money and time on the dissemination of knowledge produce a higher grade of citizenship, more intelligent interest in public affairs, a daily press with higher standards, a more vigorous intellectual life?

Either the system of imparting knowledge is wrong or the bulk of the costly education is wasted on boys and girls unable to assimilate and digest it. We prefer to believe that education will "take" much better when schools try to make their pupils think instead of burdening their memories with a jumble of more or less unrelated facts.—December Sunset.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR:

MUCH against her will, Irene Robeline is sitting up at the wake of Lilith Holden, pretty wife of the minister, Guinn Holden. Irene had feared the sharp tongue and witch's instinct for guessing facts that other people wished concealed that was part of Mattie Anson, the town gossip. In the heavy flower-laden atmosphere Irene guards her own secret as Will Lundy, the new doctor, listens to Art Rakestraw and Mattie discuss the beauty and coquetry that had been Lilith's. After every young fellow in town had proposed to her at least once, it was the minister she married, though "she didn't care for the poor sucker she'd hooked, but only the fish swimming in the sea." Whether or not the fellows already had girls mattered not at all to Lilith. "Just give me a little time," she had said when taunted "to land" the new minister from Abby Whitaker. With the whole town for an audience, Lilith pursued the minister, determined to break down his resistance. Her pride hurt, she appealed to his manhood, confessing her love for him. His answer was, "Do you mean it enough to marry me this morning?" Still thinking she could string him along, Lilith became Mrs. Guinn Holden.

Now Go on With the Story.

CHAPTER V.

IRENE drew a deep breath, as a drowning person might on rising to the surface just before going down for the last time.

A silence settled on the group; even Mattie Anson's chatter stilled for a time.

The curtain by the French window opening on the porch swung again, as if for someone to enter. Art looked up quickly, hope and apprehension on his perspiring face, then settled back without a word. The scent of tuberose was heavy on the air. From across the hall came the cry of a tiny baby, like the mewling of a lost kitten.

"Poor little tyke," muttered Art. "Sounds like it's crying for its mammy, like it knows she's dead."

"No," said Mattie, the practical. "It wants to be put to the breast." A tear stole down Art's nose, to be wiped away furtively by a fat hand that trembled.

Mattie, the practical, spoke: "Eh, la, la! I reckon it's better as it is. I often wondered how it would turn out. I never believed Lilith would go on being cramped down in a little parsonage. I could see she was getting fretful and had the fidgets. The preacher looked like he could kiss the dirt she walked on, he loved her so, but no preacher Lilith."

They sank into silence again. From across the hall came Aunt Viny's voice, quavering in a spiritual that attempted to soothe the baby's cries:

"Sometimes I feel like a motherless child!"

"I wish that old fool would shut her mouth!" rasped Art. Irene sprang to her feet. "I think I'll go out on the porch a few minutes," she said unsteadily. "It's so close in here."

"Yes, some fresh air will do you good," Lundy held aside the curtains for her so that she could step out through the French window.

She walked across the porch, her trembling limbs hardly able to support her, and leaned her head against the pillar where the jasmine vine wound upward with its white, starry flowers. Their perfume was strong in her nostrils, so that she felt a swirling faintness.

The clock in the church steeple struck 12, its echoes reverberating softly, as in a dream. A white, mystical moonlight bathed the lawn; the trees, the sleeping houses in an unearthly radiance that seemed to pick out each separate leaf on the rose bushes beside the porch, each separate pearl of dew on the grass, then shimmered away down the deserted street like a pathway to eternity.

Outside were roses, star jasmine, moonlight, a twitter of nesting birds. In the house a corpse, a baby wailing for its dead mother, a man with a breaking heart. Who could measure the heartache that life brought?

Her thoughts ran together in a wild incoherence of pain that must not express itself, that must hide even from conscious thought, scoured back by an iron will. She fought them as she had for over a year now, ever since the hour when she had heard that Guinn Holden had married Lilith.

How could it have happened? ... Had Lilith guessed her secret that day when she asked her about the new minister, before they had met at the church social? Had she caught a new zeal for her predestined pursuit of him from that divination? It would be like Lilith.

If Lilith hadn't come home from Alabama when she had, Guinn

Holden would have loved her, Irene! He had cared, though he didn't realize it himself. But she had known! That night, fifteen months before, when they sat by the wood fire in her sitting room, he was trembling toward love for her. ... That calm companionship like clasped hands, that oneness of spirit and aims had been beyond the need of speech. ... She had thought. ... She had known, with the unerring instinct of a woman who loves, that at but a word, a look, from her, the truth would have been crystallized into speech. ... But she had cast down her eyes lest he see their light. She had talked of trivial things. ... A man didn't respect a woman who came halfway to meet him, she had told herself.

Outside were Roses, Jasmine, Moonlight.

Oh, fool, fool that she had been! ... The next day Lilith had come home. ... It was a mistake to be one of soul. ... He had married Lilith, who had gone all the way to meet him.

While she had idealized him, had tended her love for him like an altar flame, while she would have given her body to be burned to save him pain, ... he had let himself be swept away by a pretty doll's face, a coquette's allurements—by Lilith!

She laid her forehead against the cool stars of the jasmine, as her thoughts fled backward through a burning maze of what had happened.

She had thought she knew what suffering was in those three months when Lilith had pursued him publicly. But she had been thinking only of his pride that would be injured, of his feelings that would be wounded, when a flirt flung him over for the town to laugh at. ... She had never dreamed that Lilith would marry him. ... But when she had heard he was married—why hadn't the agony killed her? ... She had reviled herself for loving another woman's husband, but her heart had cried out that Lilith had stolen him from her. ...

The year had dragged by like a serpent of flame across her soul. ... She saw the months again—the visit to her sister in Kentucky, where she had fled when she heard of the marriage—the months when she had taught school away from home, as an excuse for not going back. ... Mattie Anson said teaching didn't agree with her, for she looked peaked!

She must hold her head high and face forward with courage, so no one should guess. ... But at twenty-three she felt the hopes of youth were over—slain by light words and a tricky smile. ... And now life had slain Lilith! ... But that even-handed justice couldn't make up for what was lost. ... Yonder in the house Guinn Holden was grieving for Lilith.

Oh, if she could keep bitterness out of her heart, and have faith to go forward! ... She saw again the look of deep-etched grief on Guinn Holden's face as he bent over the casket that night.

William

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR:

MUCH against her will, Irene Robeline is sitting up at the wake of Lilith Holden, pretty wife of the minister, Guinn Holden. Irene had feared the sharp tongue and witch's instinct for guessing facts that other people wished concealed that was part of Mattie Anson, the town gossip. In the heavy flower-laden atmosphere Irene guards her own secret as Will Lundy, the new doctor, listens to Art Rakestraw and Mattie discuss the beauty and coquetry that had been Lilith's. After every young fellow in town had proposed to her at least once, it was the minister she married, though "she didn't care for the poor sucker she'd hooked, but only the fish swimming in the sea." Whether or not the fellows already had girls mattered not at all to Lilith. "Just give me a little time," she had said when taunted "to land" the new minister from Abby Whitaker. With the whole town for an audience, Lilith pursued the minister, determined to break down his resistance. Her pride hurt, she appealed to his manhood, confessing her love for him. His answer was, "Do you mean it enough to marry me this morning?" Still thinking she could string him along, Lilith became Mrs. Guinn Holden.

Now Go on With the Story.

CHAPTER V.

IRENE drew a deep breath, as a drowning person might on rising to the surface just before going down for the last time.

A silence settled on the group; even Mattie Anson's chatter stilled for a time.

The curtain by the French window opening on the porch stirred again, as if for someone to enter. Art looked up quickly, hope and apprehension on his face, then settled back without a word. The scent of tuberoses was heavy on the air. From across the hall came the cry of a tiny baby, like the mewling of a lost kitten.

"Poor little tyke," muttered Art. "Sounds like it's crying for its mammy, like it knows she's dead." "No," said Mattie, the practical. "It wants to be put to the breast." A tear stole down Art's nose, to be wiped away furtively by a fat hand that trembled.

Mattie, the practical, spoke: "Eh, la, la! I reckon it's better as it is. I often wondered how it would turn out. I never believed Lilith would go on being cramped down in a little parsonage. I could see she was getting fretful and had the fidgets. The preacher looked like he could kiss the dirt she walked on, he loved her so, but no preacher was ever born that could satisfy Lilith."

They sank into silence again. From across the hall came Aunt Viny's voice, quivering in a spiritual that attempted to soothe the baby's cries:

"Sometimes I feel like a motherless child!"

"I wish that old fool would shut her mouth!" rasped Art.

Irene sprang to her feet. "I think I'll go out on the porch a few minutes," she said unsteadily. "It's so close in here."

"Yes, some fresh air will do you good," Lundy held aside the curtains for her so that she could step out through the French window. She walked across the porch, her trembling limbs hardly able to support her, and leaned her head against the pillar where the jasmine vine wound upward with its white, starry flowers. Their perfume was strong in her nostrils, so that she felt a swirling faintness.

The clock in the church steeple struck 12, its echoes reverberating softly, as in a dream. A white, mystical moonlight bathed the lawn; the trees, the sleeping houses in an unearthly radiance that seemed to pick out each separate leaf on the rose bushes beside the porch, each separate pearl of dew on the grass, then shimmer away down the deserted street like a pathway to eternity.

Outside were roses, star jasmine, moonlight, a twitter of nesting birds. In the house a covey, a baby wailing for its dead mother, a man with a breaking heart. Who could measure the heartache that life brought?

Her thoughts ran together in a wild incoherence of pain that must not express itself, that must hide even from conscious thought, scoured back by an iron will. She fought them as she had for over a year now, ever since the hour when she had heard that Guinn Holden had married Lilith.

How could it have happened? Had Lilith guessed her secret that day when she asked her about the new minister, before they had met at the church social? Had she caught a new zeal for her predestined pursuit of him from that divination? It would be like Lilith.

If Lilith hadn't come home from Alabama when she had, Guinn

Holden would have loved her, Irene! He had cared, though he didn't realize it himself. But she had known! That night, fifteen months before, when they sat by the wood fire in her sitting room, he was trembling toward love for her. . . . That calm companionship like clasped hands, that oneness of spirit and aims had been beyond the need of speech. . . . she had thought. . . . She had known, with the unerring instinct of a woman who loves, that at but a word, a look, from her, the truth would have been crystallized into speech. . . . But she had cast down her eyes lest he see their light. She had talked of trivial things. . . . A man didn't respect a woman who came halfway to meet him, she had told herself. . . . Oh, fool, fool that she had been! . . . The next day Lilith had come home. . . . It was a mistake to be one of soul. . . . He had married Lilith, who had gone all the way to meet him.

Outside were Roses, Jasmine, Moonlight.

While she had idealized him, had tended her love for him like an altar flame, while she would have given her body to be burned to save him pain. . . . he had let himself be swept away by a pretty doll's face, a coquette's allurements—by Lilith!

She laid her forehead against the cool stars of the jasmine, as her thoughts fled backward through a burning maze of what had happened. . . . She had thought she knew what suffering was in those three months when Lilith had pursued him publicly. But she had been thinking only of his pride that would be injured, of his feelings that would be wounded, when a flirt flung him over for the town to laugh at. . . . She had never dreamed that Lilith would marry him. . . .

But when she had heard he was married—why hadn't the agony killed her? . . . She had revealed herself for loving another woman's husband, but her heart had cried out that Lilith had stolen him from her. . . .

The year had dragged by like a serpent of flame across her soul. . . . She saw the months again—the visit to her sister in Kentucky, where she had fled when she heard of the marriage—the months when she had taught school away from home, as an excuse for not going back. . . . Mattie Anson said teaching didn't agree with her, for she looked peaked!

She must hold her head high and face forward with courage, so no one should guess. . . . But at twenty-three she felt the hopes of youth were over—slain by light words and a tricky smile. . . . And now life had slain Lilith! . . . But that even-handed justice couldn't make up for what was lost. . . . Yonder in the house Guinn Holden was grieving for Lilith. . . .

Oh, if she could keep bitterness out of her heart, and have faith to go forward! . . . She saw again the look of deep-etched grief on Guinn Holden's face as he bent over the casket that night.

Across her thoughts cut the sharp crying of the baby that seemed roused to a new realization of distress. Aunt Viny made cajoling efforts to comfort it, but the little shrill voice, scarcely human in its sound, wailed on, monotonous, incessant, its yelping like impotent protests against an unfeeling world. . . . Suddenly the door to Guinn Holden's room opened and he came into the hall with the baby in his arms, held down over it. He began to walk up and down. But the crying went on as if the little creature must struggle in its vehemence. Irene could bear it no longer. She fled to him and held out her hands. "Let me help! Let me take the baby and see if I can quiet her," she said brokenly. He lifted a haggard face, and a look of relief came into the blood-shot eyes as he surrendered the baby to her without a word. She held it close, murmuring words of tenderness. . . . the tiny puckered face smoothed, the crying ceased and the baby nestled against her with a sigh, as if it had found its mother.

CONGRESS DROPS PROHIBITION TOPIC

RELIES ON HOOVER TO CREATE IMPARTIAL COMMISSION

Washington, Jan. 17.—(UP)—The promises of President-Elect Hoover to create an impartial commission to investigate prohibition as soon as he is inaugurated has caused most leaders in congress to drop the subject and await the report of the commission.

Some senators believe that wets and dries are coming to a saner attitude toward the prohibition issue. Senator Edge, New Jersey wet republican, is one who takes this view. He and Senator Jones, rep., Wash., one of the driest senators, went arm in arm to call on Hoover and ask his prohibition views.

"The most gratifying occurrence that appeals to me in connection with prohibition is the indication that the so-called wets and dries are demonstrating a disposition to get together to obtain an investigation of the situation," Edge said. "This is shown by the harmony between Senator Jones of Washington and myself in connection with recent proposals for a thorough inquiry which will in one form or another be authorized."

Sen. Sheppard, dem., Texas, and author of the eighteenth amendment, reiterated this view today that whatever happens, prohibition is firmly rooted.

REFORM GROUP NOW CONTROLS SALVATION ARMY

AS RESULT OF VOTE OF UNFIT-
NESS AGAINST GEN. BRAM-WELL BOOTH

COURT ACTION MAY BE NECES-SARY BEFORE NEW COM-MANDER IS FOUND

London, Jan. 17.—(U.P.)—A dispatch to the Evening Standard from Southwold said today that General W. Bramwell Booth would accept the decision of the Salvation Army's high council and retire. The dispatch was not confirmed from other sources.

By ARCH RODGERS

Sunbury-on-Thames, England, Jan. 17.—The reform group, headed by Commander Evangeline Booth, held control of the Salvation Army today as a result of the vote of unfitness against General Bramwell Booth but court action may be necessary before a new commander is found.

The high council last night by a vote of 55 to 8 held General Booth—who has controlled the Army since 1912 when his father died and he became commander by succession—unfit for further tenure of office. Only 48 votes were necessary to oust General Booth from control and the vote showed the power that Commander Evangeline Booth had wielded in her fight for a reform in the organizing plans of the Army.

But General Booth does not plan to retire without a fight. Even though he is ill, the aged leader issued a statement through the London Daily Mail saying he would oppose the attempts to oust him.

"I shall resist with every means in my power the attempt to deprive me of leadership of the Salvation Army," the general's statement said. "I have not much money but I shall use it defending my position."

The fight against Booth was that of sister against brother. But strangely enough the fight was not made on General Booth. The fight was against a system, the reform element believing there was a virtual autocracy in the commandship under the present constitution of the Salvation Army. By the present constitution the commander is appointed by the retiring commander—just as General William Booth, the founder, appointed General W. Bramwell Booth—and the commander has complete control of finances and major decisions throughout the world. General Booth already had named his successor, it was understood, and the name was in a sealed envelope at his home. The reform element, headed by Evangeline Booth, believed the commander should be elected and that the finances and other major matters should be under control of the council. It was on this basis that they opposed General Booth and it is on this basis that they will probably attempt to elect a new commander. Many names have been suggested, including that of Commander Evangeline Booth.

General Booth has been ill for many months. He was rallying some but suffered a collapse Tuesday. It was believed the collapse partly has been brought on by the fight he has made in the last week or ten days to retain control of the council.

MEN DO THINGS RIGHT AT LINCOLN MEETING

New Record of Attendance Established at "Dads Night."
P. T. A. Gathering

FINE PROGRAM, LUNCH

Vote of Expression Shows Dancing in New School Favored

Dad gave mother a few pointers last evening about conducting a parent teacher association meeting. It was an occasion that mother can point to with pride as one of the chief accomplishments of the year for her helpmate.

"Dads Night" at the Lincoln Parent Teacher association meeting established a new mark in attendance, because more than 200 attended, in talent, because the cream of mirth, melody and sense was tapped, and in general hospitality because the fathers extended themselves to outlive other sponsors of meetings.

To say that the meeting was successful would be putting it mildly. It really was a tremendous success.

And mothers came out 100 per cent strong to see how their "daddies" would act. There is no disputing the statement that everyone was pleased with the result, with the manner in which the meeting was conducted, of the program offered and the lunch served.

After the first song of the group lead by Dr. A. K. Cohen everyone joined in the spirit of the occasion. The high school quartet dedicated one of their "hits" to the dads of the Lincoln school. Their "darky" melodies showed wonderful harmony.

Rev. N. P. Olmsted, the speaker of the evening, commended the movement of the association in providing milk for underweight children of the school.

In discussing the topic "Being a Dad," Rev. Olmsted reviewed the different periods of a boy's life from infancy.

"There is a period in every boy's life when his father is a hero and idol to him. That confidence of the boy in his father is important in the building of the character of the boy. It lays a foundation for better citizenship as he grows older. It is highly necessary for the father to respect his boy's confidence. A father who breaks the law produces a demoralizing effect upon the life of his son. Examples set by the father and mother go farther than teaching. The parents' attitude towards life counts a great deal in the fashioning of the child's character. The atmosphere of the home is the greatest educational factor in the life of the child. Each man should strive to be worthy of his son's admiration. The finest influence in dad's life is his responsibility for his children. Maintain an atmosphere in your home that will inspire the boy to great heights," said Rev. Olmsted.

Dr. G. I. Badaux gave two solos, accompanied at the piano by Miss Effie Drexler which were greatly appreciated by the audience. Previous to singing he urged cooperation of the entire city in the raising of money to purchase a radio system for the St. Joseph's hospital. He spoke of the benefits which the patients would receive through the installation of radio receiving sets in each room.

TRAFFIC DECLINE

AFFECTS MEN HERE

M. and I. Dispatching Force to be Transferred to Bemidji, January 20

TO REPLACE TELEGRAPHERS

Telegraphers Here Will Take Care of Ticket Office in Addition to Own Work

On account of the steady decline in passenger business handled at the railroad station in this city, there is no longer sufficient work to keep exclusive ticket clerks busy and the Northern Pacific have decided to replace them with telegraphers, who will take care of the ticket work in addition to doing the necessary telegraphing.

For a number of years past the train dispatchers of the Minnesota and International, in connection with their own work, have done all the telegraphing for the Northern Pacific in Brainerd.

Being relieved of the latter work as above, the M. and I. dispatching force will be transferred to Bemidji, effective January 20, where they will replace telegraphers and combine that work with their other duties.

MEN DO THINGS RIGHT AT LINCOLN MEETING

New Record of Attendance Established at "Dads Night,"
P. T. A. Gathering

FINE PROGRAM, LUNCH

Vote of Expression Shows Dancing in New School Favored

Dad gave mother a few pointers last evening about conducting a parent teacher association meeting. It was an occasion that mother can point to with pride as one of the chief accomplishments of the year for her helpmate.

"Dads Night" at the Lincoln Parent Teacher association meeting established a new mark in attendance, because more than 200 attended, in talent, because the cream of mirth, melody and sense was tapped, and in general hospitality because the fathers extended themselves to outlive other sponsors of meetings.

To say that the meeting was successful would be putting it mildly. It really was a tremendous success.

And mothers came out 100 per cent strong to see how their "daddies" would act. There is no disputing the statement that everyone was pleased with the result, with the manner in which the meeting was conducted, of the program offered and the lunch served.

After the first song of the group led by Dr. A. K. Cohen everyone joined in the spirit of the occasion. The high school quartet dedicated one of their "hits" to the dads of the Lincoln school. Their "daddy" melodies showed wonderful harmony.

Rev. N. P. Olmsted, the speaker of the evening, commended the movement of the association in providing milk for underweight children of the school.

In discussing the topic "Being a Dad," Rev. Olmsted reviewed the different periods of a boy's life from infancy.

"There is a period in every boy's life when his father is a hero and idol to him. That confidence of the boy in his father is important in the building of the character of the boy. It lays a foundation for better citizenship as he grows older. It is highly necessary for the father to respect his boy's confidence. A father who breaks the law produces a demoralizing effect upon the life of his son. Examples set by the father and mother go farther than teaching. The parents' attitude towards life counts a great deal in the fashioning of the child's character. The atmosphere of the home is the greatest educational factor in the life of the child. Each man should strive to be worthy of his son's admiration. The finest influence in dad's life is his responsibility for his children. Maintain an atmosphere in your home that will inspire the boy to great heights," said Rev. Olmsted.

Dr. G. I. Badeaux gave two solos, accompanied at the piano by Miss Effie Drexler which were greatly appreciated by the audience. Previous to singing he urged cooperation of the entire city in the raising of money to purchase a radio system for the St. Joseph's hospital. He spoke of the benefits which the patients would receive through the installation of radio receiving sets in each room.

TRAFFIC DECLINE

AFFECTS MEN HERE

M. and I. Dispatching Force to be Transferred to Bemidji, January 20

TO REPLACE TELEGRAPHERS

Telegraphers Here Will Take Care of Ticket Office in Addition to Own Work

On account of the steady decline in passenger business handled at the railroad station in this city, there is no longer sufficient work to keep exclusive ticket clerks busy and the Northern Pacific have decided to replace them with telegraphers, who will take care of the ticket work in addition to doing the necessary telegraphing.

For a number of years past the train dispatchers of the Minnesota and International, in connection with their own work, have done all the telegraphing for the Northern Pacific in Brainerd.

Being relieved of the latter work as above, the M. and I. dispatching force will be transferred to Bemidji, effective January 20, where they will replace telegraphers and combine that work with their other duties.

PROHIBITION PLAY TO BE PRODUCED

"Who Killed Earl Wright?" to be Given at Presbyterian Church, January 21

FEATURE PROHIBITION

Cast of Local Characters Will Support Principals From Minneapolis

A moonshine murder case will be enacted at the Presbyterian church in Brainerd next Monday night, January 21. Twenty-four local participants, drawn from five uniting churches, will present what is said to be a unique entertainment filled with human interest, "its smiles and tears conveying wholesome lessons of life for all sorts of people."

This trial, and the Christgau dialogue Debate, "Can the Law Be Enforced?" which is to be given at the Methodist church on Sunday night, January 20, are being put on here by representatives of the Anti-Saloon League, Superintendent D. L. McBride and Rev. W. C. A. Wallar, both of Minneapolis.

For the trial, "Who Killed Earl Wright?" the following cast of characters has been selected: Judge, Rev. N. P. Olmsted; sheriff, George Lowe; bailiff, M. E. Morrison; Coroner, Rev. T. M. Krauss; defendant, Clayton Hess; bootlegger, George H. Berkholder; Earl Wright's widow, Miss Milena Vanasek and two children, Marion Scott and Mary Helen Scott; Mrs. French, witness, Mrs. W. C. Cobb; defendant's mother, Mrs. Walter Folsom; court reporter, Miss Nellie Nyquist. Messrs. Wallar and McBride are the "lawyers" prosecuting and defending the two "criminals." The jury will consist of Rev. Floyd A. Kufus, foreman; Albert Erickson, Charles McKay, Carney Peterson, John F. Zander, W. A. M. Johnstone and Mesdames Robert Falconer, A. C. Weber, A. M. Opsahl, W. C. Mannis, W. W. Bane and Miss Alta Franklin.

This trial has been put on in more than a dozen of the larger towns of Minnesota, and always with marked success in packing the houses and winning favorable comment. President Johnson, of Gustavus Adolphus college writes: "The trial was conducted in a dignified and proper manner, and left a good impression. It brought out in a vivid way the curse of intoxicating drink, the parties who are really responsible for existing conditions, and the remedy."

Both the debate on Sunday night and the trial on Monday night are free to the public and all are invited and welcome as long as there is standing room. An offering for the work of the League will be taken.

SANTIAGO IS TO FIGHT TONY CANZONERI

LITHE CUBAN RECENTLY KNOCKED OUT JOEY SANGOR

GETS REAL CHANCE AS CHAMPIONSHIP CONTENDER TO-MORROW NIGHT

CUBAN HAS SPENT FIVE YEARS FIGHTING AS A SECOND RATER

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(UP)—Armando Santiago, the lithe Cuban featherweight who stepped into fistic prominence a few weeks ago by knocking out Joey Sangor, gets a real chance as a championship contender tomorrow night when he meets Tony Canzoneri, former titleholder.

Santiago's victory over Sangor came as a distinct surprise. The Cuban had spent five years fighting as a second rater.

Santiago and Canzoneri said they were ready for tomorrow night's fight but both indicated they will weigh in around 130 pounds which would place them in the junior lightweight division.

That fact probably gave ground for a telegram which Frank Churchill, manager of Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, sent to Promoter James Mullen, suggesting that the winner be matched with Morgan.

CRAIG WOOD OF NEW JERSEY LEADS GOLFERS

WINS FIRST ANNUAL PASADENA $4,000 OPEN TOURNAMENT

COMPLETED 36 HOLES IN 138 LATE YESTERDAY ON DIFFICULT COURSE

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 17.—(UP)—Craig Wood, of New Jersey, one of the country's leading golf professionals, won the first annual Pasadena $4,000 open tournament when he completed 36 holes in 138 late yesterday.

After completing the first 18 in 72, which was one above par and tied him for second position, he did the afternoon 18 holes in 66 to tie the course record.

Dallas Jeffers, of Long Beach, also had a 66 in the afternoon and his 74-66-140 placed him in second place, two strokes behind the winner.

START WRESTLING CLASS AT Y. M. C. A.

JOHNNIE BECK TO INSTRUCT A GROUP STARTING MONDAY; SPRING MEET PLANNED

The wrestling class at the local Y. M. C. A. will start activities next Monday evening at 9 o'clock.

Johnnie Beck, well known wrestler and lightweight champion of Iowa, has been secured to instruct the mat work.

All who are interested in learning the fine points of the game are requested to sign up for the class not later than Monday evening of next week. A large class is expected and Mr. Beck asks that all those who intend to take part in the instructions, report to him at the initial workout.

A new mat was purchased last spring through donations from local business and professional men, and has been placed in the upper assembly room of the Y. M. C. A. to be used for the class work.

The Y. M. C. A. feels very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Beck who has had years of amateur and professional experience in mat work, and who has volunteered to take the class and give young men of Brainerd the benefit of his experience.

The class is within reach of all who wish to participate as the only requirement is annual membership in the "Y." It is also of interest to know that plans are being made for a city wide amateur wrestling meet in the spring, in which medals will be given the winners of events.

Control Your Weight

Now, ladies and gentlemen, you can be thin or fat as you desire. But you must do your part. If you want to reduce eat more of your food in the morning. And if you want to increase your weight eat heavily in the evening. These are the conclusions of Frederick Hoelzel, volunteer worker in the physiological laboratories of the University of Chicago.
